Clause 9(1) of the Bombay Rice Mills Licensing Order,1949 provides that a licensee shall deposit with the licensing authority such sum not exceeding Rupees two hundred and fifty as may be specified by it. Under this clause, it would not be possible for the licensing authority to notify that the deposit paid for the licen ce under the Bombay Flour Mills (Chakki) Licensing Order,1949 shall be construed to be the deposit under this order. However in order to enable the licensing authority to do so, a proviso will have to be added to clause 9(1) as shown in the appended draft order.
